

Roger C. Wade & The Houserockers

30 Years of Blues Power – Pure, Live & Swingin'

For nearly three decades, Roger C. Wade has been a driving force on the European blues scene — a British-born harmonica ace and singer known for his deep tone, raw expression, and unshakable sense of groove. Whether blowing fire through a Sonny Boy shuffle or laying it down slow and soulful, Roger delivers the blues with heart, grit, and a healthy dose of humour.

His band, The Houserockers, is a powerhouse outfit rooted in the golden age of jump blues, West Coast swing, and 1950s R&B. The long-standing core — featuring T-Man Michalke on guitar and Marion Wade on piano — brings decades of tight musical chemistry to every stage. With Stephan Roffmann on upright bass and the ever-grooving Micha Maass on drums, they form a rhythm section that's both solid and swinging.

From juke joints to jazz festivals, the Houserockers have made their mark with explosive live shows full of spontaneity, drive, and soul. Their sound pays homage to legends like Sonny Boy Williamson, T-Bone Walker, Otis Spann, George “Harmonica” Smith, and William Clarke, while always staying fresh and full of their own spark.
